DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Claims 1-18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Arvidsson ('889).

Arvidsson ('889) discloses a cutting tool, comprising two parts having cooperating connecting surfaces (12,13) of serration type, which individually comprises a plurality of ridges (16), which are mutually separated by grooves (14) and the pitch between the ridges in the respective connecting surfaces being one and the same. Arvidsson ('889) also inherently suggests that the widths of two or more grooves positioned one after the other in a series in one of the connecting surfaces could increase progressively from a first groove to a last groove in the series. Arvidsson ('889) discloses at column 6, lines

13-18. To provide the device of applicant with grooves of varying width would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art, in view of the teachings of Arvidsson ('889), since all the claimed elements were known in the prior art and one skilled in the art could have combined the elements as claimed by known methods with no change in their respective functions, and the combination would have yielded nothing more than predictable results (varying widths) to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention.

It should furthermore be pointed out that the curve shape of the ridges and the grooves, respectively, may vary most considerably. The same may for instance have another closed curve shape than precisely a circular and polygon-like, respectively, e.g. ellipse.

With respect to claims 3-5, 8-11 and 13-17, the claimed width enlargement would have been an obvious matter of design choice to a skilled artisan since such a modification would have involved a mere change in the size of a component. A change in size is generally recognized as being within the level of ordinary skill in the art. In re Rose, 105 USPQ 237 (CCPA 1955). It appears that there would be no new or unexpected result from such a modification.

With respect to claims 6, 12 and 18, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use the claimed location, since it has been held that rearranging parts of an invention involves only routine skill in the art. In re Japikse, 86 USPQ 70. It appears that there would be no new or unexpected result from such a modification.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 1/28/08 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

In response to applicant's argument that the examiner's conclusion of obviousness is based upon improper hindsight reasoning, it must be recognized that any judgment on obviousness is in a sense necessarily a reconstruction based upon hindsight reasoning. But so long as it takes into account only knowledge which was within the level of ordinary skill at the time the claimed invention was made, and does not include knowledge gleaned only from the applicant's disclosure, such a reconstruction is proper. See In re McLaughlin, 443 F.2d 1392, 170 USPQ 209 (CCPA 1971).
